Presidential Address

Call for reaffirmation of fealty

"As Fellows, we plight our troth to surgery. We are most confirmed in our love for this noble and honorable discipline when there is a reaffirmation of fealty to the principles upon which the College was founded in 1913—dedicated to the ethical and competent practice of surgery and the provision of high-quality care for the surgical patient," LaSalle D. Leffall, Jr., MD, FACS, the newly installed President of the College, said in his Presidential Address last evening.

Dr. Leffall told the audience that surgeons "should reject the thesis of providers who give health care to clients or customers. We are surgeons, and we treat patients. There is no closer, more reverent, or more honored bond than the one that exists between surgeons and their patients."

During the presentation, "Reaffirmation of Fealty—To Serve All," which he delivered at the conclusion of Convocation ceremonies in the Riverside Hilton and Towers, Dr. Leffall outlined four major areas in which the College can assist surgeons in the practice of their profession.

First, he said, the College should assist surgeons in making the managed care system responsive to the needs of patients and surgeons, ensuring the highest quality surgical care.

Second, the College should maintain the integrity and viability of general surgery—"that fundamental discipline that forms the basis of all surgery," he said.

Third, the College should increase the involvement of its Fellows in ACS activities. Fourth, the College should "use its moral force, when applicable, on behalf of the Fellows in their quest for just and fair treatment," he said.

"We must never forget that the object of our affection is the surgical patient. If we ever forget that, then this Convocation Ceremony and Clinical Congress will amount to naught," Dr. Leffall said. "As we gain more experience in our profession, the romance of the neophyte tends to dim, and what we can and cannot do are brought into sharper focus. It is with this realization that we know how important it is to give our patients hope and in doing so you grant them one of greatest of all human joys—the joy of anticipation that perhaps, just maybe, there is something that can be done to help them," he stated.

"It is time for a reaffirmation of fealty to the principles we surgeons hold dear and to be ever mindful of the creed emblazoned on the College Seal—Omnibus per artem—fidemque prodesse (to serve all, with skill and fidelity). May it be so forever," Dr. Leffall concluded.

Dr. Murray is ACS President-Elect

David G. Murray, MD, FACS, a former Chairman of the Board of Regents, was named President-Elect yesterday afternoon at the Annual Meeting of Fellows and Initiates that took place in the Ernest N. Morial Convention Center.

Dr. Murray, who is professor and chairman of the department of orthopaedic surgery at the State University of New York (SUNY) Health Science Center, Syracuse, NY, will be installed as President of the American College of Surgeons at the 1996 Clinical Congress in San Francisco, CA.

Dr. Murray received a medical degree in 1955 from Washington University School of Medicine, St. Louis, MO. He continued his medical training as an intern at Vancouver (BC) General Hospital, 1955-1956; assistant resident in general surgery at Upstate Medical Center, Syracuse, NY, 1958-1959; and resident in orthopaedic surgery at State University of Iowa, Iowa City, 1959-1962.

Dr. Murray served as assistant professor of orthopaedic surgery at Upstate Medical Center, Syracuse, NY, from 1962 to 1966. He became associate professor (1966-1969), professor (1969), and served as chairman of the department of orthopaedic surgery at that institution from 1966 to 1986.

Dr. Murray became a Fellow in 1966. He served as a Regent from 1985 to 1994, and served as Vice-Chairman (1992-1993) and Chairman (1993-1994) of the ACS Board of Regents. He has served on numerous committees of the College, including the Reimbursement Committee (1985) and Scholarships Committee (1988).

Dr. Murray is a past president of the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons (1982-1983) and has served as chairman of the academy's finance committee and planning and development committee. Currently Dr. Murray is president of the Orthopaedic Research and Education Foundation and is a member of the board of trustees for the American Journal of Bone & Joint Surgery. He is also affiliated with Crouse-Irving Memorial Hospital and the Veterans Administration Hospital, Syracuse, NY.

Dr. Gage receives top ACS honor

The highest honor awarded by the American College of Surgeons—the Distinguished Service Award—was presented to John Ochsner Gage, MD, FACS, of Pensacola, FL, at the Annual Meeting of Fellows yesterday afternoon. As a Fellow, Dr. Gage has served the ACS in several capacities. He has been a member of the Board of Governors; President and Secretary-Treasurer of the Florida Chapter; Chairman of the Board of Governors' Committee on Socioeconomic Issues; and Chairman of the Florida District I Credentials Committee. He is currently Chairman of the CPT/Relative Work Value Committee, a Cancer Liaison Physician for the Commission on Cancer, and a member of the College's Florida Committee on Trauma.

In 1992, Dr. Gage was appointed to a six-year term as the ACS representative on the AMA/Specialty Society RVS Update Committee (RUC). His role on that committee is to represent general surgery. The purpose of the RUC is to recommend relative work values for new and revised CPT codes to the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA), which considers the recommendations when it adds the codes to the Medicare fee schedule.

Dr. Gage also serves as a member of the RUC's Research Subcommittee and the Subcommittee on the Five-Year Review of the Medicare fee schedule. In addition, he was appointed chairman of the RUC's Cross-Specialty Reference List Subcommittee. Dr. Gage also has served as one of the RUC's representatives to HCFA's refinement meetings that are held each year to review the relative work value recommendations for certain services before they are added to the Medicare fee schedule.

Earlier this year, Dr. Gage was appointed as one of the College's representatives to its Committee on Practice Expenses, which is involved in the College's practice expense study. As part of that study, Dr. Gage serves as the chairman of the ACS Clinical Advisory Panel, which is responsible for overseeing the estimation of practice expenses for selected general surgery services.

As indicated in the citation recognizing Dr. Gage's achievements, he was given the award because he has worked toward a better understanding and more equitable utilization by both surgeons and government of the CPT codes and their evaluation. He has demonstrated an admirable understanding of all government agencies, programs, rules, regulations, restrictions, and changing policies that affect medical practice.

A 1967 graduate of Tulane University School of Medicine, New Orleans, Dr. Gage was a Lieutenant Commander in the United States Navy from 1974 to 1975 and served as the surgeon on the USS Kitty Hawk. He was an instructor of surgery at Tulane from 1981 to 1993 and has been assistant clinical professor of surgery since 1993. He concurrently serves as chief of trauma service and chairman of the trauma committee at West Florida Regional Medical Center, Pensacola, FL.

Dr. Gage

The ACS Board of Regents is pleased to recognize Dr. Gage's outstanding contributions by naming him the 1995 recipient of Distinguished Service Award.

No detail goes unnoticed...

...Or, in this case, unappreciated. Two surgeons from Indonesia, Hafil B. Abdulgani, MD, FACS, and Widarto Binafsihi, MD, expressed their appreciation to College staff for the inclusion of the Indonesian flag on the stage during Monday's Opening Ceremony.

The surgeons spotted the flag among the 51 others assembled on the stage that surrounded the opening ceremony participants: ACS Officers, Regents, Governors, and Honorary Fellows, and representatives of numerous specialty societies. Each year, the Opening Ceremony, over which the ACS President presides, officially begins and sets the tone for the Clinical Congress.

In addition to Drs. Abdulgani and Binafsihi, Dr. Kustiyo Gunawan travelled to New Orleans from Indonesia for the Congress. Dr. Gunawan was inducted into Fellowship on Thursday evening during Convocation Ceremonies.

The College staff welcomes comments regarding all of its functions. Fellows are encouraged to contact staff members either during meetings or at College headquarters in Chicago (55 E. Erie St., Chicago, IL 60611; tel. 312/664-4050).

The Distinguished Philanthropist Award was presented to Dr. and Mrs. Woods by Mrs. Abdol Islami, the 1994 Distinguished Philanthropist.

ACS practice management manual available

Surgeons who are entering practice today face numerous challenges. Concerns about practicing good medicine and maintaining quality relationships with patients and peers often must take a back seat to the dynamics of an ever-changing health care environment in which the surgeon must operate. Many of the challenges facing young surgeons today lie not in the realm of science, but in the socioeconomic and business arenas.

In an effort to address a lack of easily accessible, up-to-date information on practice management issues, the American College of Surgeons announces the publication of the manual Practice Management for the Young Surgeon. Edited by Charles D. Mabry, MD, FACS, and Irving L. Kron, MD, FACS, the manual was written by authors—many of whom are surgeons—who have expertise in the areas that most challenge the newest members of the surgical profession.

The manual is not intended to be an encyclopedic work on practice management; rather, it is designed to be a practical guide to practice selection and the business side of surgical practice.

Additionally, throughout the text there are numerous references to selected books, articles, and educational courses that will be helpful to the interested reader.

Although the College intends this manual to be a useful reference primarily for younger surgeons, it hopes that it will be of interest to all Fellows.

The 116-page manual is divided into four major sections:

(1) The Surgical Marketplace: "Integrated Health Care: Where Do Surgeons Fit?" by Bruce E. Spivey, MD, FACS; "Evaluating the Marketplace," by Robert D. Brickman, MD, JD, FACS; "Determining Potential Competition/Need in Practice Area," by George Conomikes; and "Credentialing," by Sidney Tolchin, MD, FACS.

(2) Choosing a Practice: "Choosing a Partner or Practice," by James A. Anderson, MD, FACS; "Should I Join a Group Practice?" by Stephen K. Plume, MD, FACS; "The Health Maintenance Organization," by Gary M. Ferguson, MD, FACS; "Government Practice: Department of Veterans Affairs," by Martha D. McDaniel, MD, FACS; "Military Medicine," by Col. David P. Jaques, MD, FACS; "Academic Practice," by Irving L. Kron, MD, FACS; "Moving from Academics to Private Practice," by E. Christopher Ellison, MD, FACS; "Traditional Solo and Group Practice: Practical Guidelines for the Young Surgeon," by Cheryl L. Toth and Charles D. Mabry, MD, FACS; "Accounting for a Surgical Practice," by Charles D. Mabry, MD, FACS; "Insurance Coding and Processing," by Jacqueline R. Leopold; "Collections for a Surgical Practice: A Surgeon's Viewpoint," by Charles D. Mabry, MD, FACS; "Billing and Collections," by Jacqueline R. Leopold; "Distribution of Practice Revenue, Workloads, and Work Incentives," by George Conomikes; and "Personnel Management" and "Are You Ready for the ADA?" by Alan Luba.

(3) Legal and Contractual Issues, by Paul G. Gebhard, JD, and W. Kenneth Davis, Jr., JD.

(4) Personal Financial Management for Young Surgeons: "Introduction," by Hugh H. Trout III, MD, FACS; and "Managing Your Personal Finances," by Charles D. Mabry, MD, FACS.

Members of the editorial committee who worked on the development of this manual are: Irving L. Kron, MD, FACS (member, Committee on Young Surgeons); Edward R. Laws, Jr., MD, FACS (member, Board of Regents); Charles W. Logan, MD, FACS (member, Board of Governors); Margaret L. Longo, MD, FACS (member, Board of Regents); Charles D. Mabry, MD, FACS (member, Committee on Young Surgeons); Hugh H. Trout III, MD, FACS (member, Board of Governors); and Linn Meyer (Director, ACS Communications Department).

Copies of Practice Management for the Young Surgeon may be obtained for $20 each in the general registration area where the Owen H. Wangenstein Surgical Forum is sold, or by contacting the Communications Department at College headquarters.
